Hooley ancestry

[by]

Selina (Kauffman) Smucker

THE HOOLEY ANCESTRY

Michael and Andreas Hooley (Hoelley) and Andreas's son John, sailed from Switzerland on the ship "Brotherhood" and arrived in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, on November 3, 1750.

Andreas Hooley settled in Lancaster County (now Lebanon County), Pa. He was one of the first pioneer settlers of the Amish Mennonite church in America. His occupation was farming.

John Hooley, born in 1739, was 11 years old when he came with his father to Philadelphia; he married Catherine Blank, who was also from Switzerland. He received 137 acres of land, price $1215 ($8.86) per acre from his wife. He settled on the farm in Berks County, Pa. in Berne Township and is listed as one of the first taxable people in 1754 in Berne Township.

He was ordained an Amish Mennonite minister in which capacity he labored until he was called to his eternal reward.

In April 1791, he moved with his family from Lancaster County, Pa. to Brown Township, Mifflin County, Pa., where he died October 4, 1805, aged 66 years.

Tradition says that the early members of the family were low in stature, well proportioned, having a muscular frame capable of enduring great hardships.
